

A little bit about me

Mummy Tries is a parenting and lifestyle blog written by happily married, thirty-something, mum of three Reneé Davis. Her husband Andy, and children Polly (8), Clara (5½) and Freddy (3½) are her main sources of inspiration.

Reneé blogs about the non-sugar coated ups and downs of family life. Among other things, she is a home educator, mental health advocate and real food enthusiast. As the survivor of a dysfunctional childhood, she has undergone quite a journey to ensure that her children have a better start to life than the one she had. Her memoir/self-help book Become the Best You has lots of practical advice to help others break cycles of negativity and dysfunction.

Big Achievements

In 2014, while on maternity leave with her third child, Reneé wrote her first book which was published in late November the same year.

In 2016, amid the chaos of family life, Reneé wrote her second book. A fiction novel charting one woman's journey through motherhood and mental health. Reneé hopes to have Picking up the Pieces published by the end of 2017.

Reneé is thrilled that her blog and book have inspired others to lead a better life and become the best them. She is living proof that you can survive a crappy childhood and still be normal. Whatever that means!
